

Svenja Janke
Senior Research Software Engineer
Research Software Engineering, Scientific Computing RTP
Svenja Janke is part of University of Warwick's scientific computing research technology platform.

As a research software engineer, she is part of a team dedicated to developing research software.

By training, Svenja is a computational chemist with expertise in DFT material modelling and development of machine learning models.