

Department of English & Comparative Literary Studies (ECLS):

Induction & Module Guide 2026/27 – Joint-degree Students

Welcome to Warwick!

Your Modules

Core Modules (Compulsory)

You'll be automatically enrolled on all the core modules for your course, including your core English module/s. Your lectures for these will appear on your Tabula timetable once you have registered for the module.

Lecture times for all English first-year modules can also be found here:

Your Optional Module/s

You'll also need to choose your optional English modules – for most joint-degree courses, between 30 and 60 CATS.

You should follow their home department's process for selecting English optional modules – they will then let us know your choice/s and we will allocate you a seminar on Tabula.

You will also follow your home department's process for registering for your modules on eVision – they may register you themselves or ask you to complete this.

Lectures & Seminars

Core module lectures for English modules begin in Week 1; make sure you're checking Tabula from the very beginning of term.

You will have Meet & Greet seminars in Week 1. Regular seminars (which you will need to do some reading for) begin in Week 2.

You will be assigned to your English seminar groups and these will show on your Tabula timetable.

Academic Writing Support

Want some help with essays, structure, referencing or academic style?

All students on joint honours English degrees, both based in the English and external departments can access Academic Writing Support via the ECLS Academic Writing Support Moodle

Welcome Week & Induction

Please check your Welcome Week timetable carefully for the events you are required to attend during Induction Week. These sessions are designed to help you settle in, meet staff and students, and prepare for your studies. Some events are compulsory, so make sure you know where you need to be and when.

Student Conduct

All new students are expected to complete the Student Conduct course on Moodle

Add a Language to Your Degree

For students not taking languages as part of their degree, the Language Centre offers a range of options, including Language modules not for credit and Lifelong Language Learning (LLL) courses

If you're interested, check out the available options and contact the Language Centre if you have questions.
