

Talking Birds with the Centres for the History of Medicine in Dublin and Warwick present

the new theatre

A Malady of Migration

A theatrical examination of diaspora, displacement and mental disorders in the 19th century

This land is cruel and unforgiving and many more have gone where I go, to seek not wealth but fairer living across the sea and far from Sligo

Thurs 3 – Sat 5 July 2014 1pm and 7.30pm

The New Theatre, Temple Bar, Dublin: (Connolly's bookshop)

Tickets: €8 (€4) – 1pm, €10 (€5) – 7.30pm

Box Office: 01 670 3361
thenewtheatre.com

Thursday evening show followed by expert panel discussion and reception. Saturday lunchtime show followed by post show discussion.

For CAPTIONING (subtitles) via mobile devices, email de@talkingbirds.co.uk in advance warwick.ac.uk/maladyofmigration talkingbirds.co.uk

@birdmail #migration

Please be advised that this production contains references to mental health issues and historical practices which may be considered sensitive.

Age guidance: 12 and over talking birds

Centre for the History of Medicine
in Ireland

wellcome trust

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND

Centre for the History of Medicine

THE UNIVERSITY OF WARWICK