

The Organisers of the CECS Postgraduate Forum

are delighted to announce our call for papers 2018/2019!

Working on a new chapter? Drafting an article? Want to develop as a presenter? Then we want to hear from you!

The Postgraduate Forum at the Centre for Eighteenth Century Studies, University of York, meets fortnightly during term time and offers a friendly platform for Master's and PhD students to air ideas, share experiences, and support one another in their research. We particularly welcome works-in-progress and papers by first-time presenters.

We are accepting proposals of no more than 250 words, for papers between 25 and 40 minutes in length, and which address any aspect of the long eighteenth century (1660-1850).

Thanks to generous funding from CECS we are able to offer travel support for postgraduate speakers from other universities. Bursaries will be awarded on merit. Please indicate in your application if you would like to be considered.

Please send abstracts along with a short bio to Alice Rhodes ar813@york.ac.uk, Frances Long fa1501@york.ac.uk and Lilian Tabois lt1049@york.ac.uk

Please also indicate whether you would prefer to speak in Spring or Summer term.

The deadline for proposals is 23rd November 2018
