

y. Cause of Mr. J. X. being beaten at night time as he was goinge home, was for a Whore, as himselfe afterwards confessed, & before he found out it was, he accused Mr. J.
 And Hackett to be y^e meane of it, & sent for a hector. Hackett made one of in his business. Saidt him why he beat him & told him it could be none else but he. & if it must be Mr. Hackett y^e putt him on it & saidt him gooder to tell him if it were so.
 Hackett y^e was y^e cause of it or not, y^e hector not beinge guilty of it nor understand-inge w^h he meant addt him if he was in earnest, & he told him he was, so w^h he addt him if he was sure, & told him y^e himselfe was an honest man & w^h he not doe it nor attempt to doe it, & y^e if it were not out of wagg of his fr^e & w^h was alonge w^h him he had cutt his face for him or made ap mummere y^e Mr. J. begd his garden & told him he thought it was he did it by Mr. Hackett order who he thought was y^e author of it for y^e he did nothinge to any one else y^e — should cause y^e like to happen him but to Mr. Hackett w^h to w^h y^e hector went saidt him if it was he y^e caused Mr. J. to be beaten for y^e he accused him of it & he replied it was not, nor did not know any thinge of his beinge beaten y^e y^e Hector told him w^h part & Mr. Hackett w^h a great deale of reason) was very much concerned he should make him be malicious a man as to this he should order y^e like to be done y^e Mr. J. had came to me & saidt me if Mr. J. had accused me of what he accused himselfe for y^e he knew he did a great deale more some to Judge. I should cause him to be beaten w^h to thinke he should order him to be beaten, & though he did knowe to him yet he sayd it was very unconsiderable to w^h he heard of Mr. J. to me & he wonderd he did not accuse me of it rather. I told him Mr. J. did not speake to me about nor send to accuse me of it, but w^h it was worse of all y^e Mr. J. himselfe should make y^e knowe & showe people his flesh how he was beaten w^h made all y^e some laugh heartly at him, y^e himselfe should make his weakness knowne & y^e tellinge how he was beaten & w^h part w^h him, & shewinge people his flesh, he should patiently see his paines & hold his tongue & not to tell it himselfe y^e none would knowe of it & whilst y^e fellow was beatinge of him he had all y^e while his sword under his arm w^h out drawinge of it or hanginge to defend himselfe but cryed out, & more & did deere me, & he sayd y^e fellow did not desire to take away his life nor rob him of w^h money he had but to beate him, & he cryed it was but one man y^e beate him & y^e w^h we want we body else w^h him w^h it more to his shame y^e he should be be morder a paler by one man alone hanginge a sword by his side or order his arm & w^h should not trye to defend himselfe & it is not to be admired people should not be beate him as often as they doe since he is the parliament, & heare y^e y^e time he was beaten here & w^h he saw his owne in a hanginge & w^h of hanginge gott him beaten & y^e he was innocent of it he should be

Redon:
 told to someone is a bullying
 way

y. Cause of Mr. J. Y. being beaten at night time as he was goinge home, was for a Whore, as himselfe afterwards confessed, & before he found out it was, he accused Mr. J.
 And Hackett to be y^e meane of it, & sent for a beator J. Hackett made one of in his business. Saidt him why he beat him & told him it could be none else but he & y^e it must be Mr. Hackett y^e putt him on it & asked him goddes to tell him if it were so.
 Hackett y^e was y^e cause of it or not, y^e Hector not beinge guilty of it nor understand-inge wth he meant addt him if he was in earnest, & he told him he was, so wth he addt him if he was sworne, & told him y^e himselfe was an honest man & y^e not doe it nor attempt to doe it, & y^e if it were not out of scapp. of his frnd & y^e was alonge wth him he had cutt his face for him as small as minnowe (y^e Mr. J. begd his garden & told him he thought it was he did it by Mr. Hackett order who
 he thought was y^e author of it for y^e he did nothinge to any one else y^e — should cause y^e like to happen him but to Mr. Hackett wth wth y^e Hector went Saidt him if it was he y^e caused Mr. J. to be beaten for y^e he accused him of it
 & he replied it was not, nor did not know any thinge of his beinge beaten (y^e y^e Hector told him wth part & Mr. Hackett wth a great deale of reason) was very much concerned he should make him be malicious a man as to think he should order y^e like to be done (y^e Mr. J. came to me Saidt me if Mr. J. had accused me of what he accused himselfe for y^e he knew he did a great deale more some-
 to Judge I should cause him to be beaten (y^e to think he should order him to be beaten, & though he did knowe to him yet he said it was very vnicomderable to wth he heard J. J. J. did to me & he wondered he did not accuse me of it rather (y^e him, I told him Mr. J. did not speake to me about nor send to accuse me of it, but wth a worse of all y^e Mr. J. himselfe should make y^e knowe & showe people his flesh how he was beaten wth made all y^e some laugh heartlye at him, y^e himselfe should make his weaknesse knowne & y^e tellinge how he was beaten & wth god wth him, & shewinge people his flesh, he should patiently see his paine & hold his tongue & not to tell it himselfe (y^e none would knowe of it & whilst y^e fellow was beatinge of him he had all y^e while his sword under his arm wth out drawinge of it or tryinge to defend himselfe but cryed out, for more & did beare me, & he said y^e fellow did not darre to take away his life nor rob him of wth money he had but to beate him, & he confessed it was but one man y^e beate him & y^e I was no body else wth him wth it more to his shame y^e he should be be beaten & pale by one man alone haunge a sword by his side or order his arm & y^e & y^e as much as trye to defend himselfe & it is not to be admired people should not be beate him as often as they doe, for he is the parliament, & haue y^e wth y^e time he was beaten here & wth he saw his owne in a haunge & y^e than of haunge got him beaten & y^e he was innocent of it he should be beate had on:

 told to
 someone is & bullying
 way