

LIVERPOOL AND THE LARRINAGAS

Join us at the Museum of Liverpool for an afternoon exploring the Larrinaga shipping company and their legacy in Liverpool!

The Larrinaga family came to Liverpool in the 1850s from the fishing port of Mundaka in Spain's Basque Country. Within twenty years they had built a global shipping network connecting Liverpool and Mundaka with port cities such as Bilbao, Cadiz, Barcelona, Manila and Havana.

Hundreds of Basque, Spanish and Filipino sailors and their families came to the city to work for the Larrinagas, and the descendants of many of those families still live here today.

- Did you or your family work for the Larrinaga company, at sea, in their Liverpool offices or in one of their family homes?
- Does your family have connections with Liverpool's Hispanic community?
- Do you have information, stories or photographs that you would like to share?

We welcome contributions to our community collection. Image scanning and audio recording facilities are available on the day—come and tell us your story!
