

I would like to run for a position on the SSLC as I believe that communication is key to the success of any department. Therefore, I believe that organisations such as this one are an invaluable resource as they allow students to know that their opinions are valid, and most importantly, heard. As a cross faculty studies subject, it is even more important for departments such as Liberal Arts to have great communicators on their team as it is easier for communication to break down when conversations occur between a variety of departments. Having been House Captain at my previous school, I believe that this experience has given me the communication skills required to be an effective SSLC member. For example, I had to have great organisational skills when I organised events throughout the year, as well as having effective communication skills with both the teachers and the students so that these events went smoothly. I also have a lot of experience with public speaking which I believe to be an advantage as it means that I will not be afraid to voice the opinions of my fellow students and make a change.
