

Manifesto for SSLC

Winston Tisdale – First Year Course Rep and Outreach Rep

Having completed three and a half weeks of the Liberal Arts course and finding myself enjoying it, I found myself wanting to get more involved in the course not only to improve it but also to learn more about it. We will all be on the course for at least three years and I think it's right that we improve it not only for us but for next year's freshers who like us will be trying hard not to throw the Latour reading out the window if we don't help them. Also, I am applying for the role of Outreach Rep which will involve creating initiatives that will allow us as students to apply our multi-faceted knowledge to real world problems, as well as helping local communities.

This being said the following is my manifesto for the role of First Year Course Rep and Outreach Rep

- ✚ Take feedback from all first-year students through both anonymously and through regular group feedback discussions. After receiving this feedback, I will then pass this onto the relevant professors and administration team and change will duly occur.
- ✚ Initiate projects in the community that not only allow us to develop as citizens but also allows us to use the theoretical knowledge to solve real world problems which in turn benefit the community.

Lastly, it will be my role to represent you to the senior administration team and in this you can count on me to not be afraid to voice the opinion of us a collective, no matter how critical the comments may be. I simply want to make the best parts of the liberal arts degree better and improve the aspects that are lacking.
