Social work and global health inequalities

Policy and practice developments

Edited by Paul Bywaters,
Eileen McLeod and
Lindsey Napier

"I commend this timely collection that provides the intellectual underpinning for IFSW and other global policies on social work and health and fills a huge gap in the social work literature." David N Jones, President, International Federation of Social Workers

This book examines the relationship between social work and health inequalities in the context of globalisation.

Based on the practice expertise and research of social workers from developing and developed countries worldwide and using specific examples, this book:

- demonstrates the relevance of health inequalities to social work practice and policy across the lifecourse;
- analyses barriers to good health that result from global social, economic, environmental and political trends;
- develops core ideas on how social workers can act to combat negative effects of globalisation by adopting a health inequalities lens.

Social work and global health inequalities is a unique snapshot of a new global social work that is responsive to local conditions and circumstances but seeks partners in the international struggle for equity, rights and social justice.

This ground-breaking text is essential reading for social work students, academics and researchers, and for policy makers, managers and social workers.
