Exchanges: The Interdisciplinary Research Journal

Exchanges is a peer-reviewed, open access, scholar-led, international, interdisciplinary research journal, championing publications from early career and doctoral researchers. It is published biannually by the Institute of Advanced Study (IAS), University of Warwick, UK, in association with their Global Research Partners*.

Exchanges has a rich heritage of fostering new voices and emerging domain experts, from any disciplinary traditions. It has a global readership interested in research intersectionality, interdisciplinarity and multi-disciplinarity. Alongside its open call, Exchanges also periodically makes thematic invitations for paper submissions.

Article Submission Formats

Conversations: Interview dialogues with significant research figures, focusing on their interdisciplinary contributions and scholarly insights. (3,000-5,000 words)

Research Papers: Articles exploring the outcomes, application or impact from original, unpublished research. (4,000-6,000 words)

Review Papers: Summaries of the current understanding on topics, highlighting key papers and authors, developing trends and current thought. (3,000-5,000 words)

Critical Reflections: Evaluative, reflexive critiques, opinions or insights into conference and symposia, emerging research areas or new texts. (1,000-3,000 words)

Open Call for Papers

High-quality submissions in various formats from scholars working in all academic fields are always welcome. First-time, early career and interdisciplinary researcher author submissions are especially desirable.

An international Editorial Board manages Exchanges, comprised of early career researchers, from varied disciplinary areas.
