Posters in Parliament 2023

Welcome to the ninth Posters in Parliament exhibition of research undertaken by undergraduate students from across the country. Inspired by the US Posters on the Hill event, Posters in Parliament is one of the very best opportunities for Parliamentarians and policy makers to experience the extraordinary talents being nurtured on campuses nationwide.

This event is part of the British Conference of Undergraduate Research. Since 2011 BCUR has grown every year, giving more and more students the opportunity to experience real research from the cutting edge of their field. Many of them go on to publish their work in highly rated journals and then develop their research even further through postgraduate work.

This year's main conference was held at the University of Warwick jointly with the World Congress on Undergraduate Research seeing over 650 student delegates from around the world meet to present and share their fantastic discoveries.

This year, Posters in Parliament is organised by the University of Warwick who have done an amazing job in putting the event together. Warwick has a long-established commitment to research-led learning and provides opportunities for all undergraduate students to undertake their own research, including publishing Reinvention: an International Journal of Undergraduate Research and running ICUR (the International Conference of Undergraduate Research), where over 3500 students from more than 30 institutions have presented since its inception.

There has never been a more important time to nurture and support our emerging researchers and fledgling industry professionals and we hope today you see the benefits of continuing to encourage innovation and the creation of new knowledge. Enjoy your time with us!

PROFESSOR PAUL TAYLOR

CHAIR OF THE BRITISH CONFERENCE OF UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH (BCUR)

The University of Warwick is honoured to be hosting the Posters in Parliament event which returns to the House of Commons following a break during the COVID pandemic.

At the University of Warwick, we believe in the importance of supporting students to experience the thrill and challenge of research and to develop their knowledge and skills outside of the classroom.

In this spirit of commitment to undergraduate research, we invite you to learn more about the innovative work being carried out by students from across the country. Today you will see some fantastic examples of fresh thinking from some of our brightest young minds. I hope they leave you inspired, excited, and optimistic about the future of UK research. Congratulations to every student participating in today's exhibition.

PROFESSOR STUART CROFT,
VICE-CHANCELLOR, UNIVERSITY OF WARWICK
