

Prof. Azra Raza

Columbia University, New York, USA

Azra Raza is the Chan Soon-Shiong Professor of Medicine and co-Director of the Edward P. Evans Foundation MDS Center at Columbia University. A practicing oncologist seeing 30-40 cancer patients weekly, she also directs a cancer research lab. Raza has collected >60,000 samples from thousands of her patients. She has delivered lectures on science, medicine, poetry and literature, and serves as an Editor on the website 3QuarksDaily posting daily for the last 16 years. Raza met with Vice President Biden to plan the Cancer Moonshot and with President Bill Clinton for 3-day Breakthroughs in Science and Technology Retreat. She is the author of a bestselling book, THE FIRST CELL: And the human costs of pursuing cancer to the last. She and her daughter Sheherzad live in Manhattan.

