Xchange is a free to use website which enables Higher and Further Education Institutes or Research Councils to buy and sell equipment that is surplus to their requirements.

The equipment adverts can be made available to the whole of the Education Sector and Research Councils or restricted to a user's own Institution/Research Council.

The site will help users meet their sustainable agendas and save money. Institutions and Research Councils that sell items benefit from additional income. Buyers will stretch their budgets through a reduction in the asset

Xchange allows you to:

- Place an advert
- Upload pictures and supporting files
- Search adverts
- Limit who sees the advert
- Get eMail alerts for new adverts
- Easily show adverts on your own website.

The screenshot shows the Xchange website interface. At the top, it says "Xchange" and "The UK Education Portal for buying and selling redundant equipment". There are navigation links for Home, Create Advert, Account, Contact, and Help. A "Welcome" message states: "Xchange is a product advertising system where users can advertise unwanted goods for sale or place requests for wanted goods. You must register to use Xchange." There are buttons for "Login" and "Register". A "Quick Search" box is on the right with a search bar and filters for "Items added in the last:" (Week, Month, All) and "Advert Type: All". Below the search box is a "Recently Added" section with details for a microscope and a printer. The main content area is titled "Advert List" and contains a table of items for sale.
