Are you interested in a fully-funded scholarship to study for a masters degree in the UK in 2020/21? Do you hold Syrian, Jordanian, Lebanese or Palestinian nationality? Are you interested in joining an influential alumni network? If you are, why not apply for a Saïd Foundation Scholarship?

Applications for the 2020/21 Saïd Foundation Scholarships are now open!

Are you interested in a fully-funded scholarship to study for a masters degree in the UK in 2020/21? Do you hold Syrian, Jordanian, Lebanese or Palestinian nationality? Are you interested in joining an influential alumni network? If you are, why not apply for a Saïd Foundation Scholarship?

The Saïd Foundation has offered scholarships and training opportunities since 1984. Our scholarship programme aims to promote the sustainable development of the Levant region. It provides students and young professionals from Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and Palestine with educational opportunities that will help their career development, enable them to achieve greater impact in their professional fields and bring benefits to others in the Middle East.
Scholarships are awarded to outstanding individuals with the potential to become future leaders and agents of change.

They are primarily offered for one-year postgraduate courses but in exceptional circumstances it may be possible to consider two-year programmes. The Foundation also offers one or two PhD/DPhil scholarships a year at the University of Oxford and the University of Cambridge only.

There are no restrictions on academic subjects, but candidates must demonstrate that their chosen course will contribute to the development of the region. You must apply to one or more of the Said Foundation’s 27 partner universities in the UK.

To apply for a Saïd Foundation Scholarship you must complete an online application by 23.59 (UK time) on Friday 1 November 2019. Candidates will be asked to provide a number of supporting documents, including copies of university transcripts, three references and a copy of their valid passport so please have these ready before you apply.

For further details about the Saïd Foundation Scholarships, including the eligibility criteria and guidance on how to apply, visit our website.