

MB ChB profile: Laura

My name is Laura. I did a previous degree in Applied Psychology, then I worked for a couple of years in radiology as an assistant, and now I'm here.

I originally wanted to go into mental health in psychology and then I worked in mental health and realised I was actually more interested in what the doctors were doing, so I got a job in radiology, got some experience in the clinical setting and I just loved it.

The reason I picked Warwick is that it has a wide variety of backgrounds from students. It's got paramedics, nurses, social sciences and humanities and I think everyone can bring something different to the course.

The MB ChB so far has been really good. Anatomy is my favourite, and clinical skills. It's challenging, definitely, but I love it - I find it so fascinating. It's great. In terms of specialising in the future, I want to go abroad in the future and work for a charity - so providing medical aid abroad. So that could be doing anaesthetics or as a GP or anything really! So it doesn't narrow it down but I know I want to go abroad.

So my piece of advice for someone considering doing the course is if you've gone and got some clinical experience and you think that it's something you're really interested in, go for it. I mean I love it and I think it's the best decision I've ever made.
