Using Electronic Health Records for Scientific Research:
Promises and Perils

Professor Bhramar Mukerjee
Bhramar Mukerjee is the John D. Kalbfleisch Collegiate Professor and chair of the Department of Biostatistics at the University of Michigan School of Public Health. She is also a professor in the Department of Epidemiology and a professor of Global Public Health at the School of Public Health.

Mukerjee's research focuses on the development and application of statistical methods in epidemiology, environmental health, cancer research and disease risk assessment. She has authored more than 340 publications in statistics, biostatistics, epidemiology and medical journals and has led several impactful extramural grants as a principal investigator from both the NSF and the NIH.

Dedicated to diversifying the statistical and data science workforce, Mukerjee has been leading a flagship undergraduate summer program in Big Data since 2015. This program has trained nearly 300 undergraduates, more than 60% of whom go on to pursue graduate school in a quantitative field. She is a fellow of the American Statistical Association and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. She is recipient of many awards, including the Janet Norwood Award and the Sarah Goddard Power award in 2021. In 2022, she was elected to the National Academy of Medicine, one of the highest honors for researchers in health and medicine

Using Electronic Health Records for Scientific Research: Promises and Perils
Electronic Health Records (EHR) linked with other auxiliary data sources hold tremendous potential for conducting real time actionable research. However, one has to answer two fundamental questions before conducting inference: "Who is in my study?" and "What is the target population of Inference?". Without accounting for selection bias, one can quickly produce rapid but inaccurate conclusions. In this talk, I will discuss a statistical framework for jointly considering selection bias and phenotype misclassification in analyzing EHR data. Examples will include genome and phenome-wide association studies of Cancer and COVID-19 outcomes using data from the Michigan Genomics initiative and the UK Biobank. This is joint work with Lars Fritsche, Lauren Beesley and Maxwell Salvatore at the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

Attainment Gap Dashboard Sessions: Weds 16 November OC1.06

From the Inclusion Team: We are holding an Attainment Gap Dashboard Sessions on Wednesday 16 November (13:00-14:00) in Oculus OC1.06. This is an opportunity open to anyone with access to the attainment/awarding gap dashboard (particularly colleagues working on projects relating to the Inclusive Education Model) to explore the data from the dashboard with colleagues on hand, sharing tips, highlighting what to look for and providing plenty of time to ask questions and have a play while the developers (Strategic Planning and Analytics) are present. ### Education Forum: Term one meeting

Sign up for the next Education Forum on Wednesday 23 November. This is a cross-disciplinary space for teaching-focused colleagues to discuss teaching and learning issues, build a collective and community-based voice, and influence Warwick policy and practice. View the Forum webpage for more details.

Widening Participation

The University's Widening Participation Research and Evaluation Working Group is seeking to identify academic staff and doctoral students from across the University that are involved in research regarding inequalities in access to and success in higher education. Our working group was established in 2017 to bring together academics and practitioners to identify and collaborate on research which informs Widening Participation and Social Mobility policy and practice. The group reports to the Widening Participation Committee, and makes recommendations for research, and evaluation projects, including commissions aimed at understanding and addressing disparities in students' outcomes.

Our focus is to better understand the research expertise across the University that is working on this agenda and to build a network for colleagues to collaborate, share, and disseminate research in these areas to inform best practice. If you are interested, then we would be grateful if you could please complete the following short survey:

https://warwick.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV\_cY0VvWTM0HxheZg

We would like to hold an event in December which will be an initial opportunity for colleagues to come together and share their research. There is space to let us know if you wish to contribute to this event on the questionnaire. We will review the responses and be in touch with all those who are interested by the 17th November.

Emma Smith (Professor Education Studies) and Tammy Thiele (WP Evaluation and Evidence Manager)

REF: journal articles and conference contributions guidance

Read about the policy on Open Access for the next Research Excellence Framework (REF) process. To be eligible for inclusion for the REF, journal articles and conference contributions must be deposited into a repository. The University's policy is that all outputs should be deposited in our institutional repository, WRAP, so make sure you plan ahead for your next publications and get support from the Library. ## Research participation and volunteering

Support the local communities and research centres at Warwick. Take a look at the Volunteer and Research Participation forum to share and receive interesting opportunities to get involved. Current opportunities include the WITHIN study, looking for volunteers aged 18-65 with chronic pain.

Research support in Bioinformatics

This is a potentially really useful research support service in Bioinformatics. They are offering weekly consultations (clinics) for researchers in all departments on research-related issues. These include programming, modelling (statistical or computational), server access, new technologies etc. If you are thinking about building an app or a website for a research project, for example, they have people who can help you build it. I wish we had something like this in-house, but these guys are really nice and helpful. I have had a few meetings with them about online language games, their scope is not restricted to bioinformatics research. From Dr Olga Feher (DDR)

<https://warwick.ac.uk/research/rtp/bioinformatics/clinicsandevents/>

Neuroscience Cluster

The School of Life Sciences has recently created a series of new research clusters to bring together like-minded researchers into a common theme, to share ideas and network. The Neuroscience cluster is led by myself, Rob Huckstepp, and Emily Lane-Hill. We are hoping to extend the cluster to include all researchers at Warwick with an interest in Neuroscience. We will hold monthly hybrid seminars from researchers within the network, we also aim to bring in external speakers from leading research groups, and we are planning to hold an annual Neuroscience symposium. Our aim is to create a social network throughout the university that will hopefully drive increased collaboration between researchers working on Neuroscience and related areas.

For further details please see our website (<https://warwick.ac.uk/fac/sci/lifesci/research/neuro/>), and to keep up to date please follow our twitter page (<https://twitter.com/SLSNeurosci>)

If you are interested in joining the Neuroscience cluster, please email either R.Huckstepp@warwick.ac.uk or E.Hill.4@warwick.ac.uk for further details.
