

Irène Joliot-Curie Conference

Establishing an Independent Career in Chemistry

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE: Establishing an independent academic career is an exciting and challenging process. The data available for UK chemistry suggest that more women than men find the process not exciting enough or too challenging. The first (and subsequent) Irène Joliot-Curie conference for postdoctoral researchers will provide an opportunity to meet role models, establish networks, and tap into good sources of information for those who are considering moving to an independent career in academic chemistry. The conference is open to women and men, but some of the content will be more relevant for women.

SPEAKERS: Tricia Hunt (Imperial), Rachel O'Reilly (Warwick), Joanne Thompson (Deputy Editor Chemical Science, Chemical Society Reviews), Lesley Thompson (Director – Research Base, EPSRC), Lesley Yellowlees (President-elect of the RSC)

WHEN: 12.00 Monday 1st October – 13.00 Tuesday 2nd October

LOCATION: MOAC Doctoral Training Centre, top floor of Coventry House, University of Warwick, Coventry, CV4 7AL.

COST: The conference is free but you will need to cover your travel and subsistence costs.
