DADS OF DISABLED CHILDREN RESEARCH ADVISORY GROUP

ARE YOU A DAD?
DOES YOUR CHILD HAVE A LEARNING DISABILITY?

We are looking for 6 fathers who have a child with a learning disability aged 5-11 years to be part of our new Dads of Disabled Children Research Advisory Group.

The group will meet to chat about their experiences, learn more about latest research from family researchers, and together create something which will be useful for other dads.

To be involved you will need to live in Coventry or surrounding areas and be able to attend up to three group meetings in Coventry.

We anticipate that evenings or weekends are best suited to fathers, however specific dates and times will be agreed to suit availability.

For each meeting you will get:
- £75 high street vouchers
- Travel expenses reimbursed
- Hot food (i.e. takeaway pizza)

Often fathers of children with a learning disability are not involved in research, which means that researchers know little about their experiences and the kinds of support that would be helpful.

This is an opportunity to meet other fathers and work with them to shape future research and support for fathers and their families.

No special skills or qualifications are needed to attend this small, friendly group. It is your experience of parenting a disabled child that can make a real difference to others.
