

9.00-9.30

Introduction (Alison Brady (UCL) and Emma Williams (Warwick))

9.30-10.15

Lucy Foulkes (UCL): The problem with mental health awareness in secondary schools: a multidisciplinary perspective

10.15-11.00

Richard Gipps (Oxford): Chilling through virtue

11.00-11.15 Break

11.15-12.00

Paul Standish (UCL): The therapy of education

12.00-12.45

Sami Timimi (Lincoln): Is mental health promotion a good thing?

12.45-1.45 Conference Lunch

1.45-3.00

Shared discussion session

3.00-3.15 Break

3:15-4.00

Aine Mahon (UCD): Belonging and alienation in the contemporary university

4.00-5.00: Final discussion and closing remarks

7th November 2022

30 Euston Square London NW1 2FB
Heritage Room

Mental Health, Education and the Humanities

Bringing together academics and practitioners with interdisciplinary interests, this one-day conference will explore questions such as: what can we learn from the humanities about the nature of mental health? Are humanities approaches to mental health different to those of psychology, therapy and medicine? Should humanities subjects be given more priority within schools' mental health agenda?

Contact

Alison Brady alison.brady.14@ucl.ac.uk
Emma Williams e.williams.1@warwick.ac.uk