

CAMPARI GROUP

Internship @ Campari Group – Data Scientist:

Job Description:

We're looking for a passionate and talented Data Scientist to join our team. In this role, you'll have the chance to roll up your sleeves and apply data science methods and analytics to real-world business situations (e.g dynamic pricing, logistic network optimization, optimal price pack detection, salesforce optimization and brand relaunch etc).

Data Science Team is fully dedicated to working globally with all functions of the Company on solving business problems with a strong quantitative nature.

Being a data scientist in Campari is also a great opportunity for interacting for the early beginning with first line (C-level) as well as with director and head of functions. In the role you will have the chance to develop technical statistical skills as well as management consulting skillset.

About you:

- Can distill complex results or processes into simple, clear visualizations
- Intellectual curiosity, along with excellent quantitative skills, including the ability to disaggregate issues, identify root causes and recommend solutions
- Are able to explain sophisticated data science concepts in an understandable manner
- Love building things and are comfortable working with modern development tools and writing code collaboratively
- Build and prototype analysis and models iteratively to provide insights
- Make business recommendations (e.g. cost-benefit, forecasting...) with effective presentations and communications of findings.

Qualification:

- Bachelor's degree in quantitative field like Computer Science, Engineering or Statistics
- Knowledge of statistical and data mining techniques (regression, decision trees, clustering, neural networks, etc.)
- Proficiency in R, Python
- Good command of Tableau or SAC or R Shiny
- Proven experience in working with large datasets and relational databases (SQL)
