Study on the employment outcomes of Arts, Humanities and Social Science graduates

Online focus group participants needed

We are looking for AHSS graduates to join one of our online focus groups, which will run in June, to talk about where they are employed, the jobs they do, and the skills they demonstrate. The British Academy is funding this project and believes that there is a growing need for a better understanding of whether the UK has got the right balance of skills, skill levels and disciplines for the future.
