THE ACADEMIC SIDE – SEMESTER SCHEDULE

Academic year – February to November split into 2 equal semesters, each with a mid-semester break:

Semester 1: Late - February to Late - June

Semester 2: Mid - July to Mid – November

Each semester has 12 weeks of classes including a mid-semester break followed by 1 week study leave and a 3 week exam period.

All students are expected to be available for the full semester including exams. Earlier exams or alternative assessments cannot be accommodated.

THE ACADEMIC SIDE – UNITS

Majority of units are worth 6 credit points = 7.5 ECTS/15 CATS. A normal full-time load per semester at Monash is 24 credit points which is 4 units (modules).

Each unit has approximately 3 – 4 contact hours per week. Most units will consist of a 1 hour lecture and 2 – 3 hours of tutorials, lab or studio.

Lectures consist of a large number of students (up to 350), then students are split into smaller, more personalised tutorial groups.

Assessment varies for each unit but may be made up of written assignments (or tests) throughout the semester and an exam at the end of the semester.

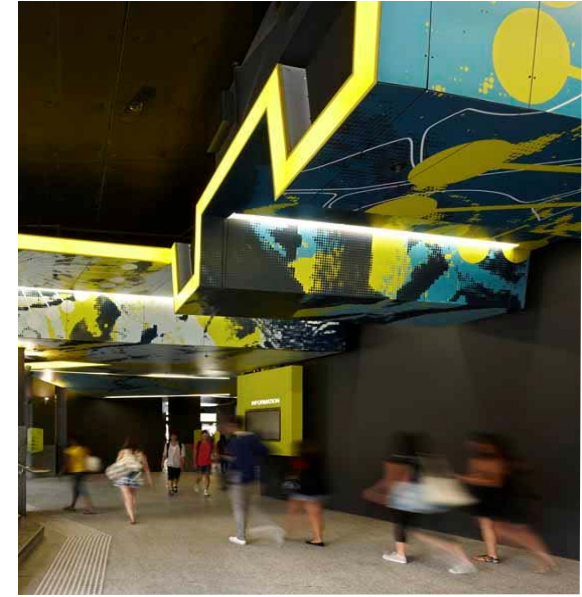

All units are completed within one semester – no full-year units

No personal tutors

Academic support services are available for students who may not be familiar with writing assignments or need academic guidance
