Dear Student

There have been a number of enquiries about examinations since my DUG Update on Wednesday. So here are a few reminders and points to the guidance.

I will be delivering an Examination preparation session at 2pm on Tuesday 7th May. This is an in-person session in which I will cover revision tips, exam formats, what to do on the day, how to access the portal, and take questions on any and all of the above. The session will be recorded. The venue is room S0.21 in the Social Sciences building. Do come along.

All you need to know about the exams is on the exam guidance section of .the Student Hub. Here you will find a link to your personal timetable.

A mock assessment (LA1230MOCK) will be available on AEP on Wednesday 8 May at 9.30am, with a submission at 12.45pm. The paper is a cover sheet with no questions included, and we recommend that all students use this opportunity to check their access to AEP, that the correct reasonable adjustments are pulling through and familiarise themselves with the instructions for Law School examinations. Students should also practice uploading a mock answer sheet (this could just be a blank document with your student ID number) in a .docx (Word) or .pdf format, with an appropriate file name. Further exam guidance, including the use of AEP, is available on the Student Hub. This is not compulsory but it always advisable to practise.

If you have any questions, feel free to use the DUG Padlets below

I hope to see you either at the Exam preparation session or the Module Fair.

Best wishes,

Maggie and Daniel
