Affective Politics of the Global Event

Trauma and the Resilient Market Subject

James Brassett, University of Warwick, UK

Series: RIPE Series in Global Political Economy

Emotional and psychological discourses of 'trauma' and 'resilience' play important roles in how the global event is 'known', how it is governed, and how the affective dimensions of market life are lived. By identifying the contingent rise of these emotional discourses of trauma and resilience, this book de-stabilises and politicises the apparent existential veracity of the global event providing a route into understanding and interpreting the possibilities and limits of the affective turn in market life with implications for the classic questions of international political economy: who wins, who loses, and how might it be changed?
