

60th Anniversary Programme - call for ideas

The University of Warwick will celebrate its 60th anniversary in 2025, we are excited to invite proposals for events that can be considered for commission into a year-long celebration programme. These events will play a vital role in bringing our anniversary celebrations to life for our students, staff, alumni, local community, and international audience.

This is a fantastic opportunity to have your research, partnerships and projects included in a high-profile programme where you can extend your networks, engage communities and reach new audiences. Proposals that are commissioned for the programme will be supported by ambitious marketing and communications planning, to ensure that inclusion in programme will increase exposure and wider audiences.

Please carefully read the briefing and complete your online proposal by 23:00 on Friday 31 May 2024. If you have any queries, please contact the team at: Warwickat60@warwick.ac.uk. We look forward to hearing your ideas!

Outline of Vision and Objectives

Our 60th anniversary programme, commencing in January 2025, will be forward-thinking, inclusive, and innovative. It aims to actively involve our Warwick communities in collaborative and co-creative endeavours. The programme will serve as a catalyst, breathing life into the aspirations outlined in the University of Warwick's strategy. It will offer experiences that instil confidence in our future, foster connections between individuals and ideas, and facilitate collaborative progress towards our goals for 2030.

Throughout the year, the programme will encompass a diverse range of commissioned events designed around the following themes:

- Converge - new events focused on the 60th anniversary, which can be supported through funding and production support. We expect to see a small number of these events that will have significant impact across our audiences.
- Collaborate - integrating the 60th anniversary into existing activities that already take place, aimed across our key audiences.
- Celebrate - through co-created events delivered by students and departments, with marketing tools to support and promote.

These events will have real impact on audiences and will energise and animate our 2030 Strategy ambitions: pointing the way ahead so that, together, we can make a better world, through our shared outcomes:

- Social inclusion: The 60th anniversary strengthens our culture of belonging and inclusion, where students, staff and our wider communities can reach their potential.
- Supported by innovation: 60th anniversary showcases the value of creative ideas, actions and collaborations.
- Regional leadership: 60th anniversary enables the economic, social and cultural growth of our region.
- International: 60th anniversary supports growing our global networks, engagement and influence and champions our diverse global campus community
- Sustainability: 60th anniversary embeds sustainability in our curriculum and research, supporting campus biodiversity, and operations to go beyond net zero.

What are we looking for?

We are looking to curate a comprehensive programme across the year with innovative, forward-looking, and inclusive events – online, on campus and off campus that will engage and excite our audiences in our 2030 story of change. We will commission ideas that lead to a balanced programme. All proposals need to be aligned to the 60th anniversary outcomes and explain how the activity will contribute to longer-term outcomes:

- Your ambition to positively change behaviours and perceptions linked to the 2030 Strategy outcomes.
- What existing resources you have through people, expertise, and financial budget.
- What additional support you are seeking to realise this change.
- More about the activity, your audience and production, planned timing and dates etc.
- An evidence-based approach to how you will engage your audience.
- What will be produced.
- An understanding of which of the shared outcomes your idea supports, and the difference it will make.
- How you will measure the impact and the change you achieved post-event.

How we can support

Your ideas will be carefully considered in terms of how we will curate into them into a year-long programme, determining whether they align best with the converging, collaborating, or celebrating themes. Additionally, we can provide appropriate support through budget allocation, event planning expertise, toolkits and resources, marketing and promotion. Where complementary ideas emerge, we can facilitate partnerships between applicants.
