

Global Research Priorities in International Development Newsletter

Term 1

November 2018

Dear GRP ID Members,

As we near the end of the term, we have our final event approaching, and a few friendly reminders as well.

Please note: We will now be circulating fortnightly newsletters, so that all our members have a chance to see updates from the GRP in International Development. We, like you, dislike being over-emailed so we are trying to cut this down as well. If you would like any GRP ID relevant news to be circulated to our network, please ensure you send your items in for review by Wednesday each week to be considered.

We are still accepting applications for seed funding, and as usual, we will be offering modest sums of funding to successful applicants. If you have any collaborative or interdisciplinary events or activities which explore our annual theme, or on international development more generally, please do send through an application. Further information and application processes about seed funding can be found here.

Our Annual Photography Competition is still accepting submissions for our first deadline on 20 December, for inclusion in the exhibition at the City Arcadia in Coventry as well as the photography prizes. For further information on the guidelines, t&c's, please refer to our webpage here.

Ten Biafran children, fifty years later: The unforeseen consequences of emergency aid during the civil war in Nigeria

Wednesday 21 November, 2018

4.30pm - 6pm

PAIS Common Room, 3rd Floor, Social Sciences Building

Please join us for this Global Research Priorities in International Development Lecture and Photo Exhibition by Marie Louise Schipper, renowned journalist from the Netherlands, who will be discussing her thought provoking work around ten Biafran children who were sent to the Netherlands during the Nigerian Civil War for medical aid. Specifically, Marie Louise's work focuses on the consequences of emergency aid.

GRP ID Upcoming Events & Activities

We are very excited and happy to announce that our Annual Lecture for this year will be taking place on Wednesday 27 February, and will be given by Amjad Rihan. Amjad will talk about gold corruption and his experiences as a whistleblower. This will be a fantastic event, with more information to come soon!

Our Annual Postgraduate Conference will take place on Thursday 13 June. This one-day conference is designed to give postgraduate students from different research areas an opportunity to present and discuss their research and form new connections with their colleagues across different disciplines. We will be circulating the Call for Papers shortly.

We also have Greg Power from Global Partners Governance who will give the keynote lecture at the conference.

Of course we have a list of other great events that we are currently finalising and will share with you as soon as we can! Do keep up to date with our events here.

Other News and Events

The Gender and Development Journal has recently put out a call for contributions for their next issue. The topic of focus is Feminist Values in Research, and the deadline is 15 December. For further information please click here.

The Humanitarian Engineering Symposium 2018 is a great event that brings together scientists, engineers and practitioners from across academia, industry and non-governmental organisations to discuss, share and promote current research developments into three interconnected themes linked to economic, sociocultural and environmental sustainability. This will take place on Monday 10 December, and you can register here.

Please also see a call for papers by the Kazakhstan PhD Association in the UK, on the Second Central Asian Research Forum on Sustainable Development and Innovation. This is a great opportunity for early career researchers!

And lastly.. To keep up to date with our external funding opportunities and other calls, please refer to our funding page here.
