

Monash Warwick Alliance Joint PhD Programme

Fees and Funding

Funding: Key Information

Please note that Australian domestic students should apply through Monash and UK/Home and EU students should apply to Warwick. If you are an international student outside of these countries you should apply to the University at which you wish to start your course.

Applicants who are selected for the Alliance Joint PhD may qualify for local scholarships. These students may be allocated a mobility grant to support their travel between the institutions.

Other students may be awarded places on the program but will be expected to supplement any other external scholarship support (or self-funded support) with additional funds won through competition for standard travel grants (Monash students).

Monash

If you apply to Monash you should apply for both a place in the Alliance Joint PhD and a scholarship if you do not already have funding for your research degree.

Fees

UK/Home and EU students will pay standard Warwick fees.

Australian domestic students will not be charged tuition fees.

Students who are considered international in both the UK and Australia, and who do not have a scholarship that pays their tuition fees, will be liable for an international student fee for this programme. The level of fee to be paid will be determined by the fees at the university to which they apply.
