

Delroy Beverley

Delroy Beverley is a renowned anti-poverty campaigner who held senior positions within the local government and social housing sectors. Delroy is an alumnus of both Oxford and Cambridge Business Schools and as well as executive study at Warwick Business School. He was a member of the Joseph Rowntree Foundation Trust for many years and is currently Managing Director for York NHS Facilities Management Partnership. Delroy is passionate about young people, as well as issues surrounding poverty and race. In 2013, he was presented with a national diversity award through Science, Technology, Engineering, and Manufacturing (STEM).