Finding Full Text

Found a resource you’d like to read, but full text is not available in the database, for example in MLA International?

Can you see a WebBridge link? Click on it, then try these three simple ways to see if you can access full text at Warwick, or to find out how to obtain it from another institution if necessary.

Full text link
In the new window, you may see a Full text from heading. If so, click on the link below to connect to the full text.

Can’t see a full text from link?

Check the Library Catalogue
If the Full text from heading is unavailable, the text may still be available at Warwick.
Remember to note the bibliographic information about the resource in the yellow box at the top.

Now try the links under Check availability in Warwick Library Catalogue to look for the resource in print or online at Warwick. Searching the Catalogue yourself is also a good idea.

Languages top tip
If you are looking for a French title, the system can be confused by accents or special characters. Try searching for the article in the Catalogue by keywords, just in case.

Article Reach
If you still can’t find Warwick access to a really useful journal article, you could use Article Reach.

Click on Request a copy through Article Reach and follow the instructions to order an article. You should receive an electronic version of the full text from another UK Library within a couple of days.

The key is to try all these steps, and not to give up! Still having problems? Your Lecturer or Librarian may be able to help find a particular article.
