

Academic Progression Advisor

Rachel Curno-Hill

Rachel has worked in various Human Resources roles over the last 15 years, both within Warwick and externally. Roles have included working as part of the central HR administration team, working within both the School of Life Sciences and WMG HR teams, administering job evaluation processes and coordinating recruitment and selection university wide. Rachel joined the Academic Progression team in autumn 2023.

As an Academic Progression Advisor Rachel enjoys supporting staff to achieve their development and progression goals and finds it rewarding to build relationships with academic stakeholders from across the university through events and committees. Rachel likes to get involved in project work and is always considering how processes could be improved and streamlined to become more user friendly.

Rachel prides herself in delivering a great customer service experience, as well as being a friendly face to come to for advice and support.

Outside of work Rachel enjoys the great outdoors, travelling, crafting and taking time out to read a good book.
