

16 What is Home?

Did you know that researchers can use art and creative methods to find out people's thoughts and ideas about a subject? Sometimes, when people can answer a question or respond to a prompt with marks and colours as well as words, we can find out even more about a subject.

YOUR CHALLENGE: In the box below, can you use marks/colours/drawings/words to share what home means to you?

If you want to share your creation with us we'd love to see it.
To find out how, please go to the Resonate Activity Book page on the Resonate website.

Hannah works in the Department of Politics and International Studies and she uses participatory methods (where people get involved in an activity as part of the research) to work with Syrian refugee communities in Jordan. Her work helps the host country, as well as local and international aid organisations, understand what support individuals and families are in need of.

Hannah's work helps these people to feel safer after leaving their home, and helps countries and organisations make the most impact with their staff, time and funding.
